

DEATH OF DR. J. BION SCOTT

CULMINATION OF AN ILLNESS OF SOME MONTHS

It Comes as a Shock to this Community—Other Deaths In County.

The news of the death of Dr. J. Bion Scott on Saturday morning of last week was a shock to this community and his many friends here. It was known that for some months his health was poor but no fatal termination was looked for. Dr. Scott has worked day and night untiringly at his profession. He took few vacations, being devoted to the care of his patients. But a strong constitution finally felt the strain and during the early part of the summer he went away with his wife to get a much needed rest and to save himself from threatened nervous prostration. It seemed at times as though the resting was to be with beneficial results, but it came to late and he fell a victim to overwork.

Dr. Joseph Bion Scott was a native of this place, being born here Aug. 29, 1859, his parents being John and Martha J. (McAllister) Scott. He was educated in Gettysburg college and was known as one of the brightest men in the class of 1877. He prepared himself for the medical profession at the University of Pennsylvania, graduating in 1881 and in a class of over one hundred he ranked first. He began the practice of medicine for a short time at Elizabethtown but in 1882 located in Gettysburg, opened an office and began what was a most successful career. Patients flocked to him and he showed the learning and ability in treating them that gave him the high standing in his class at the medical college.

He was married to Miss Elizabeth McCurdy, of this place, who with two children, Janet and Charles survive.

The funeral took place on yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. D. W. Woods, Jr., conducted the services, with interment in the Evergreen cemetery.

Jacob A. March.

On Sunday morning the 18th, Jacob A. March died at his home near New Chester, Tyrone township, aged 72 years and 4 months. Mr. March had been suffering for some years from inflammatory rheumatism and heart trouble. His condition seemed to be improving when complications appeared in week prior to his decease and death quickly followed. Mr. March was a successful farmer and enjoyed the highest respect of every one that knew him and the term he served as County Commissioner increased this respect and made his worth known to the people of the county, for in faithfulness, good judgment and integrity he made one of the best commissioners the county has had. He was elected County Commissioner in 1881 by a majority of over 500 and when the board organized he was made its president and throughout the term his good judgment was a prominent feature in the administration of that office. He was an old time Democrat, active always for the good of his party. The funeral took place on Wednesday morning of last week, services being conducted by Rev. S. P. Mauger, with interment at St. John's Reformed church, New Chester. He leaves a widow and 4 children, three sons and one daughter, Geo. B. March, of Hampton, Harry March at home, Chas. M. March and Mrs. O. M. Brame, of Idaville.

Capt. John W. Hall.

Capt. John W. Hall, a prominent citizen of Baltimore, and well known here, died on last Thursday at his home in Baltimore in his 79th year. His health has been failing for the last six months and it is said his death was as he had wished it would be, that he should pass away while asleep and not have a death bed scene. Capt. Hall was the son of a well known sea captain. When a boy he was possessed of a desire to follow the sea. His father gave him a preliminary schooling in navigation. Once on the water he learned rapidly and was in command of his own ship before he was 21 years old. He sailed in the China and South American trade and made frequent trips around the Horn to San Francisco. He was taken ill with fever in Brazil on one trip, and at his own request was taken to a hospital there and recovered. The institution was conducted by the Sisters of Mercy, and Captain Hall attributed his recovery to their care and nursing. Since then and up to the time of his death he was a liberal contributor to their support. Later he went into the coal business in Baltimore. Then he was elected President of the Consolidated Gas Company and this was followed by his election as President of First National Bank. He became interested in many of Baltimore's institutions. Captain Hall was twice married, his first wife being Miss Elizabeth A. Crawford, a sister of Miss Annie and Maggie Crawford, of Carlisle street, this place. Five children of this union survive, among them Mrs. Frances H. Walter of this place. His second wife survives with three children. The funeral took place on last Saturday, services being conducted by Rev. John Timothy Stone, pastor of Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church, with interment in Greenmount cemetery.

Dr. Steck was a staunch Democrat and the minority member of the County Board of Election Supervisors of Washington county during the administration of Governor Lowander. He leaves a widow and six children, also his mother, his brothers Rev. A. R. Steck of York, and Rev. Charles E. Steck of Frederick, and a sister, Miss Lewars, of Philadelphia.

Prof. Jacob Gundrum.

On last Friday, Prof. Jacob Gundrum died at the home of his son, Chas. A. Gundrum, in York, after a week's illness from pneumonia, aged 66 years, 9 months and 1 day. Prof. Gundrum was born in Germany, and in 1858 came to the United States, locating in Wisconsin. At the breaking out of the civil war he enlisted in one of the Wisconsin regiments forming the Iron Brigade, and served for three years. He participated in the battle of Gettysburg, after which he was mustered out of service, remaining in Gettysburg for sometime—teaching music. While in Gettysburg he married Miss Hare, and a few years after moved to Hanover, where he was elected as a Justice of the Peace of that borough. About twenty years ago his wife died, whose remains are at rest in Mt. Olivet cemetery, near Hanover, and the remains of Prof. Gundrum were interred beside her.

CAMPAIGN FOR CONGRESS

NOMINATION OF WM. M'SHERRY FINALLY RATIFIED.

Mr. McSherry Accepts in a Ringing Speech Announcing the Principles He Represents.

The nomination of Wm. McSherry for Congress was endorsed and ratified on last Saturday morning in a joint conference of not only the conferees but the committees from Adams and York Counties appointed to agree upon a system of nomination. The meeting was held at Colonial Hotel, York. At the Saturday conference besides the nominee Wm. McSherry, there were also present Hon. Chas. H. Duttera and Hon. H. N. Gitt, who had for the sake of harmony and the party made the nomination possible. The conferees from both counties were there, J. L. Butt, Esq., George Swartz, of Cashtown, and Jacob Morrison, of Hunterstown. Chairman W. P. Devine was on hand with his committee of five, W. C. Sheely, Esq., John A. Shorb, of Littlestown, Jacob I. Herter, of Highland; David H. Fink, of Oxford, and Charles W. Bucher was substituted by S. S. Neely, Esq. The York county committee of five headed by N. M. Wanner and Joseph S. Strawbridge, Esq., of York, were on hand.

Before the conference was called to order Mr. McSherry held an informal reception in the Colonial Hotel, many prominent Democrats of York county assuring him of their support and on every side there were expressions that McSherry would carry the district by an old time majority.

The conference for the ratification was organized with Charles M. Kerr, of Wrightsville, as Chairman and J. R. Strawbridge, York, as Secretary. In less than twenty minutes the nomination of Mr. McSherry by the conferees was ratified and an agreement entered into that Mr. McSherry shall have the nomination two years hence if he wants it. If he does not want it, then York county is to have nomination for four terms, or if he wants it, after expiration of same Adams shall have two nominations and York four nominations alternately, and the county entitled to the nomination shall be entitled to four conferees to the other county's three conferees. A paper was prepared and will be signed by the original committee representing the county in both counties. It is an agreement that meets with hearty approval in both counties as right and just.

Mr. McSherry was called before the conference and in a brilliant, forceful address announced the Democratic principle he would stand for in the campaign, saying as follows:

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the Board of Democratic Conferees of the 20th Congressional District of Penna. It is very pleasing to me to learn of the great honor that has been conferred upon me by the Democrats of this Congressional District.

My first thought is one of gratitude. To my friend and neighbor, Hon. Chas. H. Duttera, of Littlestown, I extend the warm hand of friendship and thank him for making it possible for me to receive the honor you have this day conferred. Although he was unanimously nominated as Adams county's Congressional candidate, he voluntarily, unsolicited by me, withdrew his name at the Conference in my behalf. I also thank my other friend, York county's honored son, Hon. Harry N. Gitt, sacrificing his personal ambition to what he believed to be the interest of his party, gracefully withdrew, although he too had been declared the choice of his home county in my favor.

Thus Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, the choice has fallen upon me without any solicitation on my part as you all will bear witness.

I will accept the nomination, and I will use no other than honorable and legal means to secure my election. As the nomination came to me without price, so I wish the election to come unpurchased and the honor to be conferred by the unthought masses.

You have done your part as you thought best. If your choice is ratified by the people next November, I will accept the duties imposed upon me and fulfil them to the best of my learning and ability. I promise you that if elected, I will give my whole time to the faithful service of the people of this District without distinction. Every letter shall be promptly answered, no constituent shall appeal in vain, no interest public or private shall be neglected. This is no idle promise. I am not a stranger among

you. York county is my home as well as Adams, for the former is the mother and the other her daughter.

More than a century and a quarter ago, my people settled in the county of York, and one of them met in the old hall that stood within the sound of my voice on yonder square, as a member of the committee of correspondence in the days of the Revolution and helped to form this government and this nation. Is it any wonder I love old York county and am willing to give my time to the service of her people?

It will be my ambition to help to secure for the city of York a government building suitable for the public service.

It will be my great pleasure to reach out my hand to the laborer and help him to win in the battle of life.

I have and always will have great admiration and sympathy for the brave soldiers who defended our nation. We cannot restore to them the limbs they lost upon the field of battle or bring back to their cheeks the flush of health, but we can make their old age happy by liberally providing for their physical wants. They helped to make and they should share the nation's wealth.

Within our district lies the beautiful National Cemetery at Gettysburg, where sleep the nation's honored dead and around which circles the greatest battlefield of the world. It will be my joy and my delight to add to its beauty and its preservation.

As a farmer's boy—brought up in the country and living there all my life, and even now my interests are with the farmers—I know the amount of daily toil the self deprivation it requires to secure a maintenance from the farm and how burdensome to the farmers is the extravagant and obnoxious taxation unjustly imposed upon us. It is the duty of the government to relieve us as far as possible from unjust taxation, and I will vote to do so. These are but a few of the matters that will come under my consideration if I am elected.

During the campaign I will publicly discuss many of the political questions of the day, and I will be glad to do so in public debate with the Republican candidate.

I believe with Thomas Jefferson, the father of the Democratic party in "equal and exact justice to all men of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political, peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none, the preservation of the general government in its constitutional vigor, a zealous care of election by the people, absolute acquiescence in the decision of the majority, a well disciplined militia, our best reliance in peace, the supremacy of the civil over the military authority, economy in the public expense that labor may be lightly burdened, the honest payments of our debt and the sacred preservation of the public faith, encouragement of agriculture and of commerce as its hand-maid, the diffusion of information and the arraignment of all abuses at the bar of public reason, freedom of religion, freedom of the press and freedom of the person under the protection of the habeas corpus and trial by juries impartially selected."

These are some of the things for which when you go home you can tell your people your candidate will stand. Let me say also that each of you take back with my heart-felt thanks for the honor you have brought to me.

I am going back to my family home now, in old Germany township, near Littlestown; and although I go more honored than when I came, those who know me will still find that I am not changed, but am their same plain old neighbor and friend.

On Monday next, I will begin the Democratic Congressional campaign in this district in the interests of all the people who favor honest elections, economy in public affairs and fidelity in public servants. I go forth to this battle with the confidence that the people of this district are ready to follow in the cause of honesty and right, and that the old Democratic party which I have the honor in part to represent, will at the November election win a glorious victory.

The nomination of Mr. McSherry has been as enthusiastically received in York county as in Adams. Here are some of the expressions:

"I am glad to hear that Mr. McSherry is the nominee. I believe he will be a very strong candidate."—Ex-Lieutenant-Governor Chauncey F. Black.

"I am greatly pleased to hear of Mr. McSherry's nomination. It is better than I had hoped for. It means a better era in politics."—A. B. Far-quhar, president of the A. B. Farquhar Co. Limited.

"I am for McSherry with all my might. I believe he will be elected."—N. M. Wanner, Esq.

"Mr. McSherry is honest, clean and brainy. He has my hearty support."—E. Dean Ziegler.

"I see no reasons why every Democrat in the district should not roll up his sleeves and go to work for Mr. McSherry. Every Democrat and good citizen should vote for him. He is honest, clean and capable and even members of the opposition party in Adams county speak well of him. It will give the Democrats a chance to reward the son for the work which his father did for the party and which was never recognized."—Adam Geesey, president of Merchants' Electric Light Company.

POST OFFICE TROUBLES.

Milliard M. Tawney Arrested on the Charge of Larceny.

One of the saddest things in the history of the community fell upon the town with the force of a horrible shock on last Saturday when it was heard that Milliard M. Tawney, a trusted employee of the Post Office, had been arrested on the charge of theft of money from the money drawer in Post Office.

For sometime Post-Master Wm. B. McIlhenny has been very anxious on account of inexplicable shortages in the cash. Books and reports have been gone over to discover the source of the same. Finally Mr. McIlhenny suspicious led him to put a watch on his money drawer.

On last Saturday noon Charles H. Wilson was on watch and Milliard M. Tawney was alone in charge of the Post Office. In the money drawer were a number of bank notes, of which memoranda had been taken of their numbers. From Wilson's point of observation he saw Mr. Tawney at the money drawer. There was a moment's diversion when another employee entered. After the latter's departure Mr. Tawney was again seen at the drawer.

Shortly afterwards in presence of Postmaster McIlhenny, Charles H. Wilson accused Mr. Tawney of taking the money. At first there was a denial. Then demand was made to see the money put in his left hand pocket and $10 in two $5 notes were shown. Mr. Wilson took the money and found that the numbers corresponded with memoranda of numbers taken of money in drawer.

Mr. Tawney was accused of being the cause of other shortages and though warned that anything he might say would be used against him, we have been informed by the Post Office authorities that he confessed to other acts in addition to the one in which he had been detected and to an amount covering the entire shortage which has given Postmaster McIlhenny much anxiety.

Postmaster McIlhenny at once laid an information before U. S. Commissioner, Geo. M. Walter and Tawney gave bail for his appearance at a hearing fixed for this afternoon.

Mr. Tawney has been an employee at the Post Office about one year and one month. He was married in this time, was a bright young man, popular and was believed to be thoroughly honest and reliable and there were many unwilling to believe the truth of the accusation when it first became public. He had no bad habits.

On Monday morning a Post Office inspector arrived and took charge of the matter.

PASTOR OF CHURCH WEDS

REV. VINCENT MARRIES MISS ELIZABETH C DOUGHERTY

A Beautiful Wedding, With Church Most Tastefully Decorated

The first elaborate church wedding in the Episcopal Memorial Church of the Prince of Peace took place yesterday morning, when Miss Elizabeth Cornelia Dougherty became the wife of the Rector of the church, Rev. H. G. Vincent. The church was beautifully decorated with palms and other plants, clusters of yellow and white cut flowers. The principal trimming being the clematis. The church was crowded with friends of the bride and groom. The ceremony took place at 11 o'clock. The bridal procession proceeded up the aisle from rear of church, led by the ushers John D. Kiehl, Esq., and Alexander Hay, O'Neal, Miss Lillie Dougherty, sister of the bride followed as bride's maid. The bride came next on the arm of her brother, Dorsey Dougherty, of the well known dry goods firm of Dougherty & Hartley. The bride was dressed in soft white mull and wore veil held in place by orange blossoms. They were met at the chancel by the groom and his best man, H. Vincent Walker, of Philadelphia, a nephew. Miss Olivia McClean the organist of the church played Mendelssohn wedding march as the wedding party passed to the chancel. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Chas. J. Wood, Rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, York, Penna., the bride given away by her brother Dorsey Dougherty.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Vincent went to their furnished home on Carlisle Street, taking with them the best wishes of a host of friends. In a few days they will leave for Boston, Mass. Among the out-of-town guests in attendance were Mrs. Geo. W. Walker and Miss Laura S. Vincent, of Philadelphia, sister of the groom.

Colt Killed by Train.

A valuable two-year-old colt of J. L. Butt, Esq., was killed by a train on Reading railroad on Sunday morning. In some way three colts escaped from a field on Meadow Valley Farm and got on the railroad track. They were bunched together when train came in sight. Two of them took alarm and jumped to the side and fell against a barbed wire fence and while no bones were broken they were severely cut and lacerated before they had extricated themselves from the fence. The third colt was struck by the engine and carried a distance. The bones in body were broken and it was otherwise so injured that it had to be killed. Dr. Moriarty has in charge the two caught in the barb wire fence and hopes to have them in good shape at an early date.

A Practical View.

"He's nothing but a hypocrite. Isn't it disgusting for a man to use his religion as a cloak?"

"Yes, and what's more, it's foolish, for religion such as his is necessarily so flimsy that he's liable to catch cold in it."—Exchange

Save Himself.

"Honest, now, Jones, did you see a burglar in your room when you called the police?"

"No. My wife had shifted the mirror in my room, and I didn't know it."—Detroit Free Press.

FROM FAIRFIELD

Church of the Immaculate Conception Re-dedicated.

There is not another town in the county, outside of Gettysburg, that has more churches than Fairfield, and no town in the county of its size that has as many. Fairfield is becoming a town of churches. The church of the Immaculate Conception of the Roman Catholics has been remodeled and enlarged. It is completed and last Sunday it was re-dedicated with imposing ceremonies. The church is beautifully frescoed; new seats, new carpets and everything is most tastefully arranged. The cost of the remodeling and enlarging was $2150. Mr. Burkhardt, of Waynesboro, was the contractor. On Sunday afternoon the rededication took place. The church was crowded. Beside Bishop Shannon, of Harrisburg, there were seven priests present. Father Glin, of St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, preached the rededication sermon. The Bishop confirmed a class of forty at the same time.

Rev. Harry Musselman and wife, of Newport, are spending part of Mr. Musselman's vacation here.

Rev. E. W. Stonebraker made a trip to Washington last week.

Miss Hettie Hick's, who was visiting Mrs. Rev. J. F. Mackley, returned to her home in Maytown, Lancaster Co. Mr. Christian Longenecker and wife, of Maytown, were guests of Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Mackley over last Sunday. The Aid Society of the Reformed church realized about $40 at their festival held here last Saturday a week.

Edward Swope and wife, of Petersburg, are visiting relatives here.

There are prospects of a large output of lime this fall at the Musselman lime kilns, now operated by the owner of the kilns.

The monuments are of the 45th, 48th, 50th, 51st, 100th, 124th, 125th, 128th, 130th, 182nd, and 137th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry regiments; the 12th, Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry and Durrell's Battery of Artillery.

In the afternoon the transfer of the monuments to the U. S. Government occurred in the National Cemetery, at Sharpsburg.

The monument of the 128th is erected in the famous cornfield where they received their baptism of fire which history tells us was one of the bloodiest battles of the war, and in which the regiment participated with bravery and distinction.

PROPOSED GAME LAWS. A Proposition to Change Those of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Joseph Kalbfuss, secretary of the State Game Commission, is drafting new game laws which will be presented to the next Legislature and ask that they may be placed on the statute book to supersede the laws now in effect. There is considerable opposition to the present game laws, and the State Commission thinks that much trouble will be obviated if the Legislature passes the bill as drafted by Secretary Kalbfuss. Some of the features of the proposed new laws are as follows:

No hunting whatever on Sunday.
Reduces penalty of $50 for destroying nests of eggs of song birds to $10, and of game birds to $25.

Limiting the number of birds, nests and eggs that may be taken under one permit for scientific purposes.

Permitting the sale of live game birds for propagating purposes.

Forbidding the killing or capture of wild pigeons for ten years.

Making the open season for killing of woodcock from October 15 to December 17.

Changing the daily limit on wild turkeys from two to one with a season limit of four, and the annual limit on deer two to one.

Making the daily limit on quail 15, or 45 a week, and 100 for the season.

Forbids the killing of deer in the water and the use of dogs in hunting them.

Forbids killing of deer with buckshot, and limits the killing to guns shooting a single pellet.

Gives officers the right to kill a dog chasing a deer at any time, and the owner shall have no recourse, being also fined $10 for owning the dog killed.

Forbids the hunting of game in the State by men hired for that purpose.

Begins the season for rabbits on October 1, instead of October 15.

Makes the open season for plover, quail, red birds, black birds and doves

The open season for geese, ducks, brant, swan, crane, coot, mud hens, snipe, sand piper, tattlers, curlews, etc., will be from September 1 to January 1, thus closing entirely what is known as spring shooting of migratory birds.

Gives the right to possess game for 15 days after the time for killing it has expired.

Limits the time of imprisonment for violation of the game laws to one year.

CHOKING ANIMALS.

Some Suggestions as to Removing the Obstruction.

The season of turnip, apple, potato and pumpkin feeding is at hand and there will doubtless, as usual, be more or less trouble from cows getting choked in eating these. The article becomes lodged at some point in the gullet and more or less distress is caused at once. The animal will cough, arch its back; the saliva will flow from the mouth and there may be a bulging of the eyes. Sometimes the lodgment occurs at such a point that relief must be given soon or death will result.

The point of obstruction can usually be located by running the hand up and down the gullet, and pressure from the fingers on the outside may be all that is necessary to dislodge the substance. If not, a little oil may be poured down the throat to lubricate the passage. Care must be taken not to use enough to strangle the animal.

If the obstruction still refuses to move take some long, slender article,

A WIFE'S CONFESSION.

Of course every one knew when they were engaged and every one pretended to be surprised when they heard it was suddenly broken off. It was first said she had broken it off, then that his heart had changed, but finally she confessed that she had been so irritable, so depressed and blue that she had fairly driven him away.

Her good looks were vanishing. She was getting thin, pale, and hollow-checked, with dark circles around her eyes. Suddenly all society was pleased again to hear of the engagement being renewed, and it was not long before a beautiful and radiant bride was taken to the altar. She had regained her good looks, her former happy disposition and strong nerve all through a secret a friend gave her. A few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is what made two more lives happy and a radiant bride more beautiful than she had ever appeared before.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Mrs. O. O. Scripps, of Prescott, Ariz., L. Box 333, writes: "For nearly two years I was a great sufferer with ulceration and enlargement of womb, also suffered severely with dyspepsia and was run down a perfect wreck. I doctored for several years; got no better, until about seven months ago I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Pleasant Pellets. I can stand on my feet and work hard all day. I feel that life is now worth living, and shall ever feel grateful to you and shall always recommend your medicines to all who are suffering in any way."

Men of Oak

Timbers of oak keep the old homestead standing through the years. It pays to use the right stuff.

"Men of oak" are men in rugged health, men whose bodies are made of the soundest materials.

Childhood is the time to lay the foundation for a sturdy constitution that will last for years.

Scott's Emulsion is the right stuff.

as a piece of rubber hose or a buggy whip and push it down. Care must be used in this operation lest the membranes lining the gullet be injured. A sharp stick should never be used and the end of what is used should be smooth and preferably soft. Sometimes a sponge is tied around the end of a stick for this purpose, but it should be securely tied so it will not pull off when the stick is withdrawn.

Sometimes the cows will gain access to these articles when it is not intended they should. Where they are fed to them it is well to cut them up and thus eliminate, to a large extent, the danger from choking. Potatoes; apples and so forth, may be readily and rapidly cut by putting them in a box and using a common spade on them. Pumpkins are best not cut at all unless it is thoroughly done. If the cow is left to do her own cutting of them she will seldom have any trouble. If cut they should be cut fine or else in long slender pieces.

FOUNDER OF RED CROSS

Henri Dunant, Who Wrote Remarkable Book, Ill and Poor.

A cablegram from Geneva, Switzerland, to the Phila. North American says:

M. Henri Dunant, the founder of the Red Cross League, is dying, friendless, poor and alone in a hospital in the Canton of Appenzell, Switzerland. He it was who, in his work, "A Memory of Solferino," suggested the organization of such a society.

The horrors of Solferino made such an impression on his mind that he wrote the wonderful little pamphlet describing the sufferings of the wounded, and calling upon the nations to alleviate the worst horrors of war by the formation of an international hospital service.

The book attracted much attention, and resulted in the Geneva Convention of 1864, which established the neutrality of the hospitals and ambulance services, and in the founding of societies in every country, with an international committee at Geneva as a center.

In 1901 M. Dunant shared the Nobel Peace prize with M. Frederic Passy, receiving $20,000. He is a poor man in spite of it, since he has spent large sums in the humanitarian causes he has championed.

TEACHER 56 YEARS

Nestor of Pennsylvania Educators Widely-Known and Popular.

Last Monday John M. Wolf, of Hanover entered upon his fifty-seventh year of service in the public schools of York and Adams counties. He is, doubtless the oldest district school teacher in Pennsylvania, both in age and service. Although 71 years of age he continues in the harness, and on Monday, again began work of instruction at Park School, in Penn township, near Hanover.

When 15 years old he took charge of the school he was attending as a pupil, and in the 56 years since then he has been absent from his post of duty only three and a half days. Possessed of marked ability, an excellent disciplinarian and an untiring worker, Squire Wolf is considered one of the most successful school teachers in Southern Pennsylvania. He has been principal of the public schools of Abbottstown, New Oxford, Littlestown, Goldsboro and Hanover.

Four of his children have been school teachers, one daughter having taught for 30 years. For 22 years he was a Justice of the Peace, and in addition to his school work, he acts as a pension agent, and writes Pennsylvania Dutch letters for the newspapers over the pen name of John Shumacker.

PARKER AND PEACE.

Bryan Considers Roosevelt Warlike and Dangerous.

William J. Bryan opened the campaign in Colorado with a speech at Coliseum Hall, Denver, last week.

Mr. Bryan dwelt at length upon what he termed the policy of militarism of the Republican party, which he said was not influenced alone by imperialism, for he maintained that the strengthening of the army was as much for the purpose of aiding capital in enforcing its demands against labor as anything else. He characterized President Roosevelt as a dangerous man because of his love of power and warlike demonstrations and unsuited to be at the head of a nation that wanted to be great in moral force and not physical force.

"You ask me, a believer in free silver, how I can bring myself to support a man who favors the gold standard. I say that I love peace and the gospel of peace infinitely more than I love either gold or silver."

He assured his hearers that if Judge Parker was elected President peace would reign in the United States during the next four years.

WHEAT AT $2.

Bulls Predict That Price Before Next May.

A Chicago dispatch of a recent date says:

"Wheat at $2 a bushel before next May," was roared by the bulls today on the Board of Trade. At the opening of the market there was an excited demand for wheat with few traders venturing to sell. The price for May delivery was from $1.11 1/2 to $1.12, and for delivery for the present month from $1.07 5/8 to $1.08.

The Agricultural Bureau at Washington through information furnished by its army of crop reporters scattered throughout every wheat growing county in the country, issued a report Saturday afternoon that according to the bulls confirmed the worst fears regarding the lamentable loss to the spring wheat crop by the black rust.

Of winter and spring wheat produced this year in the United States, it was contended there is barely enough for bread and seed if every bushel of it was available, which is not possible, and the country is therefore face to face with the necessity of bringing in foreign wheat to help keep the wolf from the door till another harvest shall have been raised.

The October "Smart Set."

The October number of "The Smart Set" is a veritable mine of brilliant stories and poems. "Moored," by Anna A. Rogers, is the title of the novelette which opens the issue. The tale leaves a remarkably vivid impression and will attract wide attention.

Gouverneur Morris, in his short story, "The Lady of Moods," has written as striking a piece of work as has recently appeared in any magazine.

In "The Two Ghosts" Richard Le Gallienne, is at his best as a good-natured satirist and brilliant epigrammatist. "When Delos Drifted," a story by Beatrix Demarest Lloyd, a new writer of great promise, is one of the most notable in the number, though one must remember the poetic beauty of Zona Gale's "A Land a Great Off," the intense realism of Theodore Water's "The Passing of Goa Out," the keen analytical power of Willard French's "The Mastiff," a story of political life in Washington, and the cleverness of Barry Pain's "The Rewards of Perseverance," the last and perhaps the best in the series of detective stories which the distinguished English author has written exclusively for "The Smart Set."

Two essays, one by Agnes Repplier, the other by F. J. Knight Adkin, add charm to this number; and there are excellent poems by such favorite verse-writers as Joaquin Miller, Er-McGaffey, Theodosia Garrison, Madeline Bridges, P. McArthur, Frank Lillie Pollock, Thomas Walsh and Arthur Macy.

Luther League.

The eleventh annual convention of the Luther League of Pennsylvania will be held in the city of Pittsburg October 18 and 19, 1904. This convention gives promise of being the largest and most enthusiastic meeting yet held by this grand body of young Lutherans of the State. Preparations are being made by the local committee to extend to all who come a glad and hearty welcome. The sessions will be held in Dr. D. H. Geissinger's Church, Grant street, which is very near the Union Depot, and easily accessible from all parts of the city.

The officers of the State organization are: President, A. Raymond Bard of Reading, Pa.; Recording Secretary, vacant; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Ida S. Zinser, Germantown, Pa.; Statistical Secretary, D. W. Shollenberger, Montgomery, Pa.; Treasurer, F. P. D. Miller, Columbia, Pa.

ANTIETAM BATTLEFIELD

STATE AND NATION DO HONOR TO PENNSYLVANIA'S SONS

Stirring Orations Heard on Ground Made Gory by Clashings of Arms 42 Years Ago.

Survivors of 13 of the Pennsylvania regiments that fought so bravely and effectively on Antietam field on September 17, 1862, returned on 17th. inst. to that historic field and dedicated the handsome monuments erected to the valor and bravery of Keystone State troops participating in the decisive and sanguinary conflict.

The presence of Governor Pennypacker and other dignitaries, along with Acting Secretary of War Robert Shaw Oliver and other well known personages, added to the interest of the occasion.

The morning hours from 9 until 12 o'clock were taken up with the individual dedications of the 13 monuments by the respective regimental associations. Governor Pennypacker and staff attended the exercises in connection with the dedication of the 124th regiment's monument, and at the conclusion drove over the field inspecting the other monuments unveiled during the morning.

In the afternoon in Antietam National Cemetery the general dedicatory exercises and the formal transfer of the monuments to the keeping of the United States Government took place in the presence of fully 15,000 people. The crowd in attendance was one of the largest seen on the battlefield in years.

Colonel Joseph W. Hawley, of Media, late of the One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania Volunteers and chairman of the Pennsylvania Antietam Monument Commission, presided at the exercises. The large rostrum was filled with persons prominent in the civil and military life of the country. The gavel used by Colonel Hawley was made from wood taken from a tree on Antietam battlefield, near where Colonel Hawley was seriously wounded during the battle.

Following a prayer by Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Holman, of Pottstown Pa., late chaplain of the Forty-eighth Pennsylvania Volunteers, Colonel Hawley transferred the monuments to Governor Pennypacker. The Commission, said Colonel Hawley, had, to the best of its ability, carried out the object of its appointment, and bequeathed Governor Pennypacker to turn the monuments over to the United States Government for further care and protection. Replying, Governor Pennypacker said:

Pennsylvania First and Last.

"It is a noteworthy fact that the State which was settled by a people devoted to the ways of peace, who taught the doctrine that a civil answer turneth away wrath, who were opposed to warfare in every respect, who even tried to carry these principles into effect in their dealings with the savage tribes, should have reached their highest distinction in battles both upon sea and land. No other State, save Virginia, can vie with Pennsylvania in the production of distinguished men in warfare. The first as well as the last of the commanders of the army of the United States were Pennsylvanians.

"We have come to a great battlefield of the War of the Rebellion. The battle was won under the leadership of a distinguished soldier. It was the army of the Potomac which determined the issues of that struggle and that army was organized by one Pennsylvanian and commanded down to the close of the war by another. But this battle, great as it was in its sacrifice of blood, great as it was in its exhibition of military skill, was still more, it has a significance apart and beyond all the other battles of that war. Abraham Lincoln, when he heard the result of this battle, issued his proclamation of emancipation and it was due to what was done upon this field the pall which had hung over

The American people for 157 years was finally dissipated.

"It is an honor, as well as a pleasure, representing as I do the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, to accept these thirteen monuments, beautiful and impressive as they are, and transfer them to you, sir, representing the United States Government, with full confidence that they will ever be cherished and cared for as memorials of the valor and achievement of men from our own commonwealth and of the Government saved by them from destruction."

In accepting the monuments in behalf of the United States Government Acting Secretary of War Oliver said:

"At no period in the history of our civil war was there more gloomy forebodings, more doubt of the success of the Union cause, than in 1862. The Union victories of the early months in the West had been followed by the victorious march of the Confederacy in Kentucky; the Union campaign at Richmond had failed and the campaign had been abandoned; Pope's army had been defeated and in the first week in September the Confederate army under Lee, flushed with victory, crossed the Potomac into Maryland, the purpose being to raise revolt in Maryland, lay siege to Harrisburg and demand the recognition of Southern independence from the Union Government, Great Britain and France. The more than defeated army of the Potomac, the shattered battalions of the Pope and new regiments of the North were wisely put under the command of McClellan, who marched against Lee, defeated him on South Mountain, September 14, followed him to this field and joined battle on the 17th, the most sanguinary one-day contest of the war, and on the night of the 18th Lee crossed the Potomac into Virginia. Both sides, Union and Confederate, on this field did their whole duty as they understood it. Here America established one of the great landmarks of its history; here Pennsylvania gave to the Union army one of her great and noble sons, General George B. McClellan.

"To you, Governor Pennypacker, is due the gratitude of the nation, and on behalf of the nation it is with great pleasure that I receive from your hands these memorials."

State's Roll of Great Leaders.

The oration of the day was delivered by Rev. Dr. John Richards Boyle, of Philadelphia, late of the 11th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. His subject was "Pennsylvania at Antietam." Mr. Boyle's address was very able and was listened to with marked attention by the large crowd. In part he said:

"Pennsylvania has a right to be heard on any battlefield of the civil war, for she helped to give them their glory. She sent 860,000 of her brave sons to the front, and had it been necessary she would have sent just as many more. On every sanguinary field during those years her beautiful banner floated besides the still more glorious flag of the great Republic. From the first gun at Bull Run to the last shot of the Rebellion at Appomattox her soldiers stood like a Gibraltar among her foes.

"Among the great deeds of valor performed on this field on the 17th of September, 1862, the soldiers of Pennsylvania were everywhere conspicuous. A Pennsylvanian commanded the Union army on that fateful day. That noble soldier, who, less than 10 months later, was to win one of the most important battles of the war. George Gordon Meade, commanded first a division and then an army corps upon this field. A Pennsylvanian, who was to achieve the proud distinction of being one of the best corps commanders of the army. Hancock, was here. Another, John F. Hartman, carried Burnside's Bridge at the head of his regiment.

Bore Brunt of Day's Fighting.

"One entire division and an entire brigade were all Pennsylvanians. Pennsylvanians were in every corps, and their aggregate losses were 2964, officers and men, almost exactly 24 per cent. of the whole casualties of the day.

It is my responsibility and honor to have this hour to outline the service rendered by these troops on one of the most crucial days of the whole civil war."

Is a Kiss an Assault?

The Southwestern Reporter gives a case in which it was held that a kiss is not to be considered an assault and he punished by a fine of $1,000 and two years in jail, if the man who attempts the kiss "reasonably believes" that the woman will allow it and if he does not intend to use force to obtain a kiss. To constitute an assault, it was held, there must be an intent to injure, and where, as in the case of a kiss, the injury is solely to the feelings, the intent cannot be presumed. It is also held that even had a conviction been warranted the punishment proposed was excessive, as the only possible injury which the prosecutrix could have suffered would have been to her feelings.

A Bow of Corn Colored Ribbon

[Original.]

A girl with an umbrella in her hand and a reticule on her arm was vainly endeavoring to tie her shoe on a crowded sidewalk.

"Will you permit me?"

A young man spoke the words in a well modulated voice and with a deferential tone. Then, without waiting for a reply, he dropped on one knee on the sloping stone, regardless of the mud or the crease in his trousers, and endeavored to tie the shoestring. Alas, it was broken in the middle!

If an untied shoestring in the street is a misfortune, a broken shoestring is a tragedy. The girl, seeing the state of the case, would have been appalled but for that reliance on the sterner sex natural to women. She waited for him to get over the difficulty without in the least concerning herself about it. The gallant fellow looked at the broken string, thought rapidly, then plunged his hands into each of his dozen pockets. From one of them he drew a corn colored ribbon that had bound together packages of cigars; then, getting rid of the broken shoestring, he laced the shoe with the ribbon.

"There," he said, rising and standing with lifted hat; "that will serve till you reach home."

The girl gave him a smile and a "Thank you!" and went on her way.

Grafton Hatch watched her retreating figure till it had passed out of sight. He was not conscious of the impression she had made on him; it simply occurred to him that he would like to meet her again, and when it had occurred to him once it occurred to him again and again. Indeed he kept on thinking so till at last it became a mania with him.

Months passed before he was rewarded by another sight of the charmer. It was springtime, and he was riding in an open electric car. A car coming from the opposite direction sped past him, and he had such a vision as one may gain from a flash of lightning on a dark night. It was the girl whose shoe he had laced, and in a buttonhole of her corsage was the bow of corn colored ribbon he had used for a shoestring.

The fire smoldering in Grafton Hatch's bosom at seeing this evidence of the impression he had made burst into a flame. But the pleasure he took in the discovery was marred by the thought that living as he did in a great city the chances were that he might never meet the girl again, or, if he did, possibly under circumstances prohibitory to his having a word with her. The distressing complication well nigh threw him into a fever. He signaled the conductor to stop the car, with a view to following the one just passed, but on looking back saw that it was already far in the distance and realized the impossibility of catching it.

Hatch spent a great deal of time trying to conjure up a method of communicating with the girl who wore his colors, but could think of none except a personal advertisement, and from this he shrank. Nevertheless, after a long period of distress he tried it, but whether his ad. never met the girl's eyes or she did not care to reply, he did not hear from her.

During the following summer Hatch visited the seashore. There were a number of resorts scattered along the coast, and the place where Hatch was stopping was separated from the one adjoining it on the north by an inlet. It was not very broad nor very deep, but there was no bridge across it and unless a boat was handy there was no way to cross it except by swimming. One afternoon Hatch went with a party of friends to the inlet for crabs. The lines were baited and the crabs were hungry. One of the ladies of the party, a girl who doted on Hatch, got a crab within reach of her landing net—she was trying to land Hatch as well—but was unable to get the crab into it. She called on Hatch, who was also in the act of landing a crab, to help her. Hatch was about to relinquish his prize to hasten to her assistance when, suddenly darting a glance at a party on the opposite bank of the inlet who were gathering up their nets and crab lines preparatory to departing, he saw a sight that changed the whole current of his intentions—the girl whose shoe he had laced. And still she wore his colors.

Hatch took in the situation as a general who perceives that without a desperate sortie his enemy will escape him. The girl struggling with the crab heard a splash and, looking on the disturbed waters, saw Hatch swimming in a straight line for the opposite bank. She watched him till she saw him clutch the bank, draw himself up and dripping, but in hand, stand before a girl with a bow of corn colored ribbon in her buttonhole.

Then she gave up hope. The crab meanwhile had got away.

That was the last seen of Hatch by any of his party that season. He walked away with the girl with the bow of ribbon and did not return to his hotel till late at night. He was soaking wet, but the weather was hot, and he was soon quite dry; besides, what were limp and rumpled garments to a man who had found his love.

The incident had been witnessed by so many persons that it was a commitment on the part of the lover, and the girl's friends were not slow in connecting him with the bow of ribbon she had long worn and of which she had persistently refused to give any explanation. A provisional engagement was announced before the lovers separated, which after Hatch had presented his credentials was made permanent. During the following autumn both crabbing parties were invited to the wedding. ANNE ATWOOD.

CATTLE—TUBERCULOSIS.

A New Method of Treatment May be Adopted.

Dr. M. Moriarty attended on Tuesday of last week the semi-annual meeting of the State Sanitary Live Stock Commission. Dr. Moriarty had learned that Dr. Leonard Pearson would address the committee. Dr. Pearson was sent by the commission to Europe during the past summer and has been studying the subject of tuberculosis in cattle at three different points, England, France and Italy. Dr. Moriarty was much interested in the unofficial report of Dr. Pearson to the commission. The Italian method of treatment was the one which met with the greatest approval of Dr. Pearson. It seems that the treatment of cattle is undergoing a complete change. At present, it is only the matured cattle that are treated, and the young cattle receive little attention. The new treatment reverses this order and the calves are treated to tuberculin, but of a different character than that at present used, one that has the effect to make the calf immune. It is more in line with the cause followed in vaccination against smallpox. It is possible the State Sanitary Live Stock Commission may approve of the new treatment and authorize Dr. Pearson to put same in operation.

Wm. Winters Captured.

Sheriff Basehoar brought William Winters to jail on Monday evening after the latter had made a sensational escape from constable Keffer of McSherrystown. Winters had been arrested on charge of assault and battery and aggravated assault and battery on Mrs. Alice Slusser. There were also informations against him by Mr. Slusser and a Mr. Fair. A hearing was had before Justice Lilly, of McSherrystown, and committed to jail here. He was in charge of Constable Keffer on trolley car between McSherrystown and Hanover with hands cuffed behind his back. At a point where trolley ran along corn field Winters jumped off car, Keffer followed but fell and pursuer succeeded in reaching the corn field. A man hunt was started but fugitive escaped from reaching the corn field. A man hunt was started but fugitive escaped from reaching the corn field. ## Dr. Hudson Says He Was the Victim Instead of Being in Wrong.

Dr. E. D. Hudson, of Fairfield, at a hearing before the United States Commissioner, Geo. M. Walter, last week, was held in his own recognizance in $500 to appear in the U. S. District Court on the first Monday of December to answer charge of improper use of mails to obtain goods. Hon. Geo. J. Benner represents Dr. Hudson. Dr. Hudson recently purchased a moving picture machine. It is alleged that later he ordered picture films and when received he took out the new films and put in their place old films and returned latter. Dr. Hudson declares that old worn out films were received, that the box was opened in presence of several witnesses who saw the old films, which were at once returned.

Look For Saturn.

Have you seen Saturn's rings? If not, you should avail yourself of the opportunity to view one of the most magnificent spectacles of the night skies. The best time to see this planet and his rings is between 9 and 10 o'clock. He hangs conspicuously in the southern sky, and if you have a telescope with which to look at him there is an optical feast for you. His rings never appear more beautiful than at their present inclination, for year by year they are slowly closing up; that is, getting edgewise to the earth. Just now their plane is inclined about 16 degrees to our line of sight, so that they appear in the form of a narrow oval, with the ball of the inclosed planet projecting on either side of them. It is a strange sight—that huge world haloed like the head of a saint with a golden circlet, especially when we remember that the circlet is almost 170,000 miles across and is maintained in position by virtue of motion many-fold more rapid than that of the swiftest cannon ball.

McSHERRY FOR CONGRESS.
McSherry for Congress is the enthusiastic slogan which tells of a victory at the polls in November, not only in the Congressional District but for the whole ticket in Adams county from top to bottom. The nomination of Wm. McSherry for Congress was a master stroke of politics and good sense. It has thrown fear and confusion into the machine ranks of the Republican party as they recognize defeat ahead.

It became apparent during the many meetings of the Congressional conference that the nomination at this time of either Hon. C. H. Duttera or Hon. H. N. Gitt might have developed conditions which would not have given assurance of victory at the polls. Hon. C. H. Duttera is to be congratulated that he saw the opportunity for harmony and victory and suggested the name of McSherry. Hon. C. H. Duttera is a young man and this act of his deserves to be held in grateful memory by his party and rewarded at a future time. Hon. H. N. Gitt is to be congratulated in according to the suggestion and making McSherry's nomination unanimous. With both of these gentlemen actively at work in the campaign, rolling up an old time majority for McSherry, the Democracy of the District and this county will have good cause to look upon both as true friends of the party.

More than all else Democracy and the people of the 24th Congressional District are to be congratulated upon having such a candidate for congressional honors as Wm. McSherry. He

A Bad Stomach
Lessens the usefulness and mars the happiness of life.
It's a weak stomach, a stomach that can not properly perform its functions.

is not alone the educated and trained lawyer, one of the best at this Bar, and able to represent his District on the floor of the House of Representatives in any emergency, but his whole life has been such as to make him a most fitting representative with interests and sympathy broad enough to cover the life of his District.

It has always been a source of pride on the part of Mr. McSherry to refer to his early life when he was trained for a commercial life in one of the stores of Littlestown. This experience has always made him keen toward the things which have effected the commercial side and the development of material conditions in the county and district.
When he decided to take up the study of law, he prepared himself with a college education in a leading institution of the country. His preparation was thorough and to-day Mr. McSherry has a well deserved reputation as a scholar. He is an accomplished writer and is an orator of ability, who has well taken care of his legal interests and has often been called upon by the world at large for addresses and it has always been his happy faculty to have something to say worth listening to and to say it well and eloquently.

In another particular Mr. McSherry will pre-eminently represent his district which is above everything else an agricultural district. Mr. McSherry was born on a farm in Germany township. He was never able to sever the home ties and it has always remained his home. He has always taken an active and earnest interest in farming and everything that pertains thereto and from pure love of it. This great agricultural district can depend upon it that in Congress this love of farming will control him so as to advance in every way the interest of the farmer.

Another characteristic of Mr. McSherry is the painstaking faithfulness he has given to every detail making up his life. In the practice of the law he has neglected no duty but has given his whole-soul attention to every detail and this quality gives assurance that he will be no respecter of persons as a Congressman, that rich or poor may approach him and whether the matter be great or small it will receive faithful and prompt attention at his hands.

With such a candidate Democracy and the people of the district and county are enthusiastically for McSherry for Congress.

THE SEAT OF SWOPE'S LIFE

The Compiler regrets the necessity to point to the many proofs of the unfitness of the politician, Samuel McCurdy Swope, for the exalted position of judge of our courts. We tried to avoid this issue for the sake of the Bench, for the sake of a judiciary, which should be kept out of politics and indicated in respectful language that Swope would be opposed by the Compiler and many citizens upon his judicial record as showing him unfit to be a judge.

The politician, S. McC. Swope, has however, insisted upon standing as a candidate. We now owe it to the people of the county to calmly submit the proofs of our charges. We will go to the very root of the matter and begin with what Swope, in his ill-considered speech against the editor of this paper, called "the seat of my very life."

A few words as to that speech. Does not the fact that a judge while in commission, deliberately went before a political convention and talked about his own judicial record show that he is unfit? Does not the fact that he sees fit to defend a judicial record at such a time show that he realizes that his record sadly needs defense? Does not bitter denunciation of the editor of a paper by the judge of our courts show a lack of appreciation on his part of the position he occupies and his unfitness for the same?

And then what did he say? He admitted that the Supreme Court had used disrespectful language about his disposition of a case and that the criticism of the Supreme Court was right. He admitted having granted new trials, and thereby business interests were necessarily injured and much additional costs put on the county. He admitted he had no poise by saying he did not know what poise was. He denied he was a partizan and boss, but the fact that he entered a political convention, made the speech he did and told his audience to go home and work for the ticket proved that he was both a partizan and boss. In fact he confesses to the truth of half of the charges we made and grows bitter because he has no other answer to make.

It is not the purpose of this paper to indulge in personalities or hot air denunciation. That course will be left to Swope who may have no other answer to make to the truth of our charges. It will be left to him to give voice to untrue statements of our feelings and motives. We will simply give the facts of his judicial career which show his unfitness for the Bench.

The charge that politics have entered into his judicial acts was demonstrated in the trial of a case but six days before he delivered his foolish speech. In the trial of case of Com. vs. Meads Judge Swope in his charge went out of his way to make a bid for votes by delivering a speech about Labor Unions. What he said was all true but that is not the point. He said what he did in the trial of a case for the purpose of making votes. Judge Swope realized it was out of place and at the conclusion made excuses for indulging in same by telling the jury that he had said what he did so as to prevent them from letting feelings for or against unions enter into their verdict. This speech has already received its true rating. Those for whom it was intended realize that the judge was trying to serve political purposes rather than a discharge of duties.

In the disposition of the case of the East Berlin Branch Railway it was demonstrated and made absolutely clear that prejudices and politics entered into and controlled Judge Swope in his official acts.

Wm. A. Himes is one of the best citizens of New Oxford and for years Judge Swope has been arrayed against Himes in his own political party and for no other reason than that Himes refused to be a follower of Quay. In 1895 in the Quay-Hasting fight Swope led the Quay forces and Himes was one of the leading spirits against him. Swope at different times personally approached Himes and lauded Quay, seeking to get Himes in line for his political god, but Himes would not see it in that light. In 1896 Swope was against Himes in the fight for delegate to the Republican National Convention and when Swope denied he had a hand in the game. Himes made a visit to Quay and the latter referred him back to Swope. Thus the Master Boss Quay recognized as his representative in Adams County Boss Swope. When Himes was a candidate for the nomination for congress against Robt J. Lewis in a personal interview between Swope and Himes, Swope finally recognized the candidacy of Himes but asked Himes "If nominated and elected you will of course be for the organization." Think of a Judge of our courts exacting a promise of a candidate to be for the organization, in other words to be for the machine, Boss Quay and Boss Swope.

W. A. Himes did not get the nomination for Congress at this time but while the matter was under consideration at the time, during a session of the court, Mullen the Quay Boss of Cumberland county desired to confer with Swope, Quay Boss of Adams county and the latter withdrew from the Bench for a short while and had a political conference with Mullen in the Court House. Contemplate for a moment the denial of Swope that he has been out of politics while on the bench.

Out of politics, why Swope has been in politics up to the neck, and has been playing the ostrich act with his head out of sight of conventions etc, imagining no one has seen him, while all the while everybody has seen the body much in evidence. And Himes all these years has been a thorn in the political side of Swope, disapproving of his machine methods and outspoken in his opposition.

In 1901 Wm. A. Himes acquired by purchase at public sale from the estate of Capt. Eichelberger three-fifths of the bonds against the East Berlin Branch Railway. These bonds were secured by a first mortgage against the railroad property and the mortgage named two men as trustees upon default to foreclose the mortgage for the benefit of the bondholders. When Himes purchased these bonds these trustees were dead.

To understand the exact situation it must be born in mind that while a railroad may be legally owned by bondholders secured by first mortgage, yet in reality the road is operated by the stockholders and a Board of Directors elected by the stockholders. The interests of the stockholders and bondholders are often opposed to each other and such was the case in the East Berlin Branch Railroad, as shown very early in the game. Himes bought the Eichelberger bonds on a Saturday and on the following Monday the Directors instead of electing Himes to fill the vacancy in Board of Directors occasioned by death of Capt. Eichelberger, elected another party who had little or no interest in the railroad in comparison with the interest of Himes, owner of a majority of the bonds. Himes thus thrust out of a voice in the management of the road he owned, asked the Directors to elect trustees in place of the two named in mortgage who were dead. The Directors paid no attention to the request of Himes and continued to manage the road he owned. Himes was finally compelled to file a bill in equity in the Court of Common Pleas of Adams county asking for the appointment of trustees under the mortgage securing his bonds in place of the dead trustees. After the bill was filed and the Board of Directors realized that they must appear in court they met and attempted to name as trustees W. W. Hafer and Wm. G. Leas. Both of these gentlemen were stockholders and directors at the time and hence were in a position antagonistic to the bondholders and as trustees would be able to continue for a time the management and existence of the stockholders and the Board of Directors.

This situation admitted of but one judicial decision. We believe there is no court in this country presided over by a judge conscientious to do what was right and just that would not have appointed as trustee whoever the bondholders, the real owners of the railroad would have suggested. Not so with Judge Swope when politics and prejudices had possession of him. When the hearing of the bill had reached a certain point, counsel for Himes arguing that the trustees suggested too late by the Directors were unsatisfactory because as stockholders and Directors they represented interests antagonistic to the bondholders, Judge Swope interrupted the proceedings by voluntarily turning to W. W. Hafer, sitting in the court room and saying.

"Mr Hafer you will resign as a director of the railroad?"

Mr. Hafer catching on to the drift of things answered affirmatively. Thereupon Judge Swope said "We will appoint W. W. Hafer, trustee." Counsel for Himes protested against the appointment but it was made.

There was no question of the ability of W. W. Hafer to act as trustee but that was not the point. Hafer was a stockholder and a director, and stockholders were operating road, Frank Hafer being the superintendent, while Himes was the real owner of the road and the court refuses to appoint a trustee friendly to the interest of the bondholders and prefers to favor the stockholders. We know of no similar judicial act of any court.

There is but one of two explanations for this judicial act of Judge Swope. He either had some reason to believe that W. W. Hafer was not as much of a friend of his as he would like him to be and that the opportunity was presented to patch up matters and make a friend, or it was taken as an opportunity to punish Himes for past political differences with him, or it was both these reasons. No matter which it was, law, equity and justice were ignored and did not control the court. It was a judicial act in which prejudice against Himes entered, or desire to win a political friend controlled and was a judicial outrage perpetrated for the sake of prejudices and politics, being an improper appointment made from improper motives. It stamps Swope as unfit to occupy a position where in the future he would be able to perpetrate other similar acts. Every fact above detailed in relation to Himes and Swope, W. A. Himes is willing to be sworn to. The voluntary act of appointing Hafer by the court can be testified to by a dozen men in court room at the time.

OUR THANKS TENDERED.

The editor of Compiler and Mrs. McClean returned last week from a very enjoyable visit to the World's Fair and a round trip from St. Louis to St. Paul by boat on the Mississippi River. Our readers will probably hear later on some of the things seen and heard in the column devoted to Thoughts and Things. That we were able to take this rest and trip was made possible by C. E. Stable, Esq., kindly offering to take charge of paper during our absence. Our thanks are most feelingly tendered Mr. Stable for this kindness, and to Schmucker Duncan who assisted and to all in the office who made our pleasant vacation possible.

McSHERRY OPENS CAMPAIGN

Mr. McSherry was the guest of the Young Mens' Democratic Society, of York, on Monday evening and opened the campaign with two speeches. The meetings were notable for great enthusiasm. From the moment of his nomination there has been a feeling that McSherry is a winner and this sentiment grows stronger each day.

FROM A REPUBLICAN ORGAN.

We clip for the perusal of our readers irrespective of party the following words from the "Harrisburg Telegraph," a staunch organ of the Dauphin County Republicans:

"There is no special divinity that raises a Judge above criticism. The criticism of a Judge is not an attack upon Courts or laws, or government, or the people. A recant, or partial, or dishonest Judge is not only a legitimate object of criticism, but of proceedings for removal from the Bench which he dishonors."

Doan's Kidney Pills Brought Strength
and Health to the Sufferer, Making Him Feel Twenty-Five Years Younger.

Sick kidneys cause a weak, lame or aching back, and a weak back makes a weak man. Can't be well and strong until the kidneys are cured. Treat them with Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's the testimony of one man cured.

J. B. Corton,
farmer and lumberman, of Deppe, N. C., says "I suffered for years
with my back.
It was so bad
that I could not walk any distance nor even ride in my buggy. I do not believe
I could have raised ten pounds of weight
from the ground, the pain was so severe.
This was my condition when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly relieved me and now I am never troubled as I was. My back is strong and I can walk or ride a long distance and feel just as strong as I did twenty-five years ago.
I think so much of Doan's Kidney Pills
that I have given a supply of the remedy to some of my neighbors and they have also found good results. If you can sit anything from this rambling note that will be of any service to you, or to any one suffering from kidney trouble, you are at liberty to do so."

medicine which cured Mr. Corton will be

TWO QUEENS

By KEITH GORDON

Copyright, 1904, by Keith Gordon

It was apparent that their visit to the art museum had nothing to do with art. It was equally plain that their feeling for each other could not be described as platonic. Bettina, to be sure, affected unconsciousness as she sauntered through the lofty rooms
where the marble figures flashed coldly into view, exciting one to a new love of mere flesh and blood, but all the time she knew that to the man at her side she was queen of the world; also it was evident enough from the look of discontent on the man's face that her loyal subject was not altogether happy.

"Your place is right here on a pedestal along with the other statues," was what he was saying to her. "The trouble with you is, Betty, that you won't listen to your heart. I might as well plead with this marble figure!"

The queen, with well feigned reluctance, brought her glance back from the headless "Victory" that seemed forever on the point of flight to the youth at her side, who was glowering
at her with an odd mixture of rebellion and adoration in his face.

"Really, Steve," she replied at last.
"I'm ashamed of you. It's not my heart that's at fault; it's your purse.
You know that perfectly well." And with her chin at an angle beautifully eloquent of injured innocence, she pretended to study the sculptured figures about her. In reality she watched him —felt him straining at his chains—with an exultant sense of the charm of being queen.

Her words and glance made him savage. It was hard enough to bear her delay in putting their love affair on that practical basis which points like an index finger to matrimony, but so long as it had seemed to him an honest hesitation he had borne it with what grace he could summon.

His lips set in an inflexible line, and without a word his hand closed firmly upon her arm, and with more determination than gentleness he guided her to a bench near by.

"Well!" she questioned when she had settled herself in a corner of the seat
and he had squared himself beside her.
In truth, though she strove valiantly
to conceal it, the queen was a trifle
startled.

Her late obedient subject studied her for some moments in silence and with an expression rather too suggestive of flint to be entirely to the queen's taste.
Then he spoke, and his words fell as crisply as icicles.

"It is about time that you understood
me," he began at last. "You have played with me long enough. What I have to say now is just this: You may take me or leave me, precisely as you choose, but whichever you do must be done at once."

He paused a moment and then elaborated:

"I'm tired of playing the devoted subject, tired of being made to feel that my love is nothing and my lack of wealth everything. I have twelve hundred a year." He paused for a brief moment, conscious of a mad desire to make the matter as bad as possible,
then added, "And there is no certainty that I'll ever have more."

Though he would have thrashed cheerfully any man who had dared to make such an assertion about him, to say it to her about himself at this particular moment afforded him a grim satisfaction.

"What I want—what I will have," he continued in a muffled voice without giving her a chance to speak. "Is a definite, a final answer!" And then, before the queen had really caught her breath,
he finished in a tone nothing short of command, "And I want it within five minutes!"

For one fleeting moment something like pale dismay showed in the girl's face. She had never counted on a moment like this. Then her eyes kindled royally, and a flush of anger over-spread her face.

Almost unconsciously she rose, her companion following her example, and her eyes blazed their resentment into the cold determination of his for a full second before she addressed him.

"You may have your answer this moment," she flung at him in a tone of dangerous clearness. "I only wonder that I could ever have hesitated! It is 'No'—a thousand times 'No'!"

She noticed with a cruel delight the sudden, still whiteness that overspread his face as, with an ironical bow, he turned and walked rapidly away. Then a new feeling suddenly clutched at her heart.

Had she not lately been a queen, with a loyal, faithful subject to whom she had turned an ear quite royally indifferent? Had not a revolution occurred in her small domain and a republic been proclaimed? Could she not understand now the sorrows of a Marie Antoinette or a Lucien?

And so at last the latest of dethroned queens reached her own door trying to philosophize about the matter as,
doubtless, her predecessors had before her. After all, it was for the best. She was poor, and Steve was poor—in possessions. But by some freakish operation of the law of compensation both were endowed with tastes of an unmistakable richness.

"Yes, it's all for the best," she said aloud as she closed the door of her room behind her. "It's all!"

The rest was lost in the pillow, for the ex-queen had thrown herself face downward on the bed and was indulging in the plebeian comfort of a good cry.

For days thereafter such interest as she felt in the dull, gray world was in the past and such interest in the future as she felt in the time in the street in which she lived.

Not that she repeated that ring-
"No" that she had given Steve on the day of their quarrel—by no means. Her heart, she told her elf, was dead. She could not be poor. She would not!
She would marry some good old soul
to whom she could render the respect of a daughter—and the bills of a wife.
That was all that a girl in her position could do. It was the fault of modern ideas.

It was after she heard about his attentions to the Polish girl that she wept no more and became markedly indifferent to the coming of the postman. From this time, too, she conscientiously tried to tolerate old Mr.
Fullerton and his flowers, the two ever arriving with an alternate regularity
that was full of meaning.

She pictured herself as a queen again,
and this time with all the outward semblance of one. But, perversely enough, she could not keep Steve Converse out of the scene. If she saw herself rolling down Fifth avenue in the Fullerton vehicle she as instantly evoked the image of Steve doffing his hat with cold politeness, while she nodded with the haughty nonchalance
of a great lady.

And so the weeks lengthened into months, and the ex-queen assured herself that she was forgetting.

"Not going out, my dear?" protested
her mother as she appeared in the hall
one gloomy Sunday with mackintosh
and umbrella.

"Yes, mother mine. It's a fine day for the art museum. No crowd, you know!"

She had never entered the place
since that fateful afternoon, but now
she was all a-tremble with eagerness to get there. Some inward barrier of pride had gone down, and she knew that she wanted to visit the scene once more just because there she could feel a little nearer to him.

The turnstile admitted her, with a click, not so much, it seemed to her,
into the museum as into the atmosphere of that distant afternoon. Before the "Victory" she stopped for a momentary dedicatory moment. It was here that he had accused her of being no more than a statue herself, and then—then he had gripped her arm and made her sit down and listen.

With a little gulp, she turned away and wandered blindly onward. When the mist cleared from her vision she found herself in the Egyptian room.
Great carved figures glared at her with stolid faces, and a ripple of interest stirred within her. With mournful eyes she read the inscriptions beside the mummy cases.

So this brown and moldering bundle had once been a queen! Through the raised lid of the case she could just catch a glimpse of the object now so dried and terrible, but once so splendently human.

"Poor queen!" she murmured softly,
as with her chin resting on her hand
she gazed down at the gorgeously ornamented mummy case. "Poor queen!"
And before she realized it a tear had splashed down on the glass.

Having been a queen, something of the sadness and futility of it all wrung her spirit. Somehow being rich or poor did not now seem to matter. Being happy seemed the greatest thing.

She was too absorbed in her thoughts to notice a young man who had been making his way nearer and nearer to her in a somewhat furtive manner.
Suddenly, as if he could no longer resist the temptation, a few quick steps
brought him to her side.

The ex-queen looked up in surprise
and then put out both hands impulsively. But the proud, high look of mastery had not yet vanished from his face.

"Did you really mean it?" he demanded.
For an answer she lifted her eyes to his for one brief, full moment. Even queens must learn their lesson. She had had hers.

Outside the steady drip, drip, drip,
of the rain was only interrupted by the wailing of the wind, and the Egyptian room was very quiet and deserted.
As the newly enthroned queen turned to leave she looked down with a flushed, wistful face at the royal mummy.
Then she murmured something softly.

"What's that?" asked her lover. But at her reply he looked slightly mystified.

"There's no use in telling you," she laughed. "Being only a man, you'll never understand, but I was saying good-
by to the other queen."

The Mask of a Phrase.

The directness of the appeal in literary expression involves a complexity of revolt against old forms. The writer is more variously tempted than the speaker into indirections. The latter would never call the sun "the orb of day" or by the classic name of "Phoebus." Yet there was a period in English literature which lasted for a long time and is not even now wholly beyond the reach of our recollection
when it seemed a breach of dignity for a writer to call anything by its right name. The concrete thing must be relieved of its vulgarity by the mask of a phrase. The horse was "the fleet conqueror," and all fruits were indiscriminately "Pomona's treasures." Qualities abstract enough in their common names were redeemed from the view of particularity by personification. The processes of abstraction and generalization in the so called classic age of English literature uprooted all things and set them floating in the air; the mind was not simply a mirror reflecting things, but made composite photographs of the images themselves. Nature was seen as a bundle of these composites.—H. M. Alden in Harper's Magazine.

SOME OF IT IS SO EXPENSIVE THAT IT
SELDOM REACHES US.

In the hilly country two industries
come to help agriculture, namely, silk raising and lacquer. To name only one district, the villages along the Naka-sando have gained much by modern improvements in silk raising. The lacquer tree may possibly have been imported from China, as so many other trees and plants were, but it certainly was known and used in Japan
at a very early period. We are used to thinking of it as ornamental only. It is that and much more besides, for plain lacquer bowls and trays are almost necessities of daily life. They raise most of what is used in certain provinces, but Tokyo imports a good deal of lacquer to be manufactured
there.

The tree is a species of rhus, closely allied to our poison ivy and having the same power to produce an irritating rash on the skin. The workers get over this, however, and do not have it again, but they say that people sometimes get it from handling bowls or trays which have not been dried long enough.

To get the sap the farmer cuts a notch in the side of each tree, and after a time a thick juice oozes out; then the farmer goes around with a wooden spatula gathering the drops into a pail.
It will keep for a long while, but must not be allowed to dry up nor to be heated above a certain point, for it contains a peculiar acid which causes the juice to ferment and harden. The pieces that have been varnished must therefore be dried in mild and moist air. Tokyo in August is usually just right, about 87 degrees.

A good piece of lacquer has to be most carefully made, in the first place,
and then varnished with layer after layer, each being dried and polished
before the next goes on. Certain pigments mixed with it give red, black or green. To apply gold a wash of varnish is laid where the design is to be and the gold powder sprinkled on from a hollow bamboo stick with a fine sieve over the end. When it is dry it must be revarnished and repolished
over all. With all these repeated processes a fine piece may be on hand for months, even years. Naturally this is not the kind that is prepared for foreign export, for people abroad will not pay for it.—Anna C. Hartshorne in Chautauquan.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS.

Some of Their Famous Feats of Physical Endurance.

One of the finest achievements of a war correspondent was that of Holt White, a representative of the New York Tribune, in the Franco-Prussian war. He witnessed the battle of Sedan from the Prussian headquarters on Thursday, Sept. 1, 1870. At its conclusion he rode to Brussels, but there the postoffice authorities refused to transmit his dispatch to London and even threatened to arrest him for saying that the French had been defeated. He then went on to Calais, crossed to Dover
by special steamer and took a special train to London, where he arrived at 5 o'clock on Saturday morning. Next day there was a description of the battle six columns long in the Tribune. It was not till Tuesday that the London newspapers had accounts of the conflict from their correspondents.

But the most famous deed of physical endurance in the race for news between war correspondents was told of Archibald Forbes. In the Serbian war of 1876 Semlin, the nearest telegraph station, was 120 miles distant from the scene of the battle. So soon as Forbes knew the result he rode off, and all night long he kept at a gallop, changing horses every fifteen miles. At Sem-lin he had one long drink of beer and then at once sat down to the task of writing, hour after hour, against time,
the tidings of which he was the bearer.
After he had written the story of the battle and put it on the wires he lay down in his clothes and slept twenty hours without waking. He had witnessed the battle, which lasted six hours; ridden 120 miles and written and dispatched a telegraphic message
four columns in length to the Daily News, all in the space of thirty hours.—
Macmillan's Magazine.

Just Like Americans.

A peculiar revelation in regard to train travel in Japan is that the people of various classes, customarily polite
in their intercourse with one another and in their dealings with aliens, lose nearly all sense of courtesy when they enter a passenger car. When I first rode in a first class car in Japan and saw several dainty Japanese women in pretty silks standing while Japanese men remained resolutely seated I could almost fancy I was on an elevated train in New York bound for Harlem.
—Harold Hodge in Booklovers' Magazine.

His Coat of Arms.

"Now that you are wealthy, Mr. C.," said the man who deals in pelicans and the like, "you really should begin to adopt a coat of arms."
"I'll do just as I please," retorted Mr. C. hotly. "If I like to go about in my shirt sleeves, that ain't none of your business!"

A Real Hero.

"You don't believe in divorce, then?"
"No, sir; I've got too much sportin'
blood."
"What has that to do with it?"
"I believe in a fight to the finish."—
Philadelphia Ledger.

cago Record-Herald.

During Its Construction.
The magnificent new edifice for Emmanuel's Reformed congregation of Hanover was dedicated on the 18th. The new building occupies the site of the recently demolished church, and is constructed of brick, with a solid Avondale stone front and trimmings. Its style of architecture is Tudor Gothic and it is 58 by 95 feet in size, with a tower 75 feet high. The auditorium, with a seating capacity of 700, is handsomely furnished and contains many memorials. The cost of the building is $65,000. At the rear of the church there is a fine chapel.
The corner-stone of the church was laid November 18, 1900, by Rev. George B. Reeser, to whose efforts the building of the church may be credited. While supervising the construction of the building Mr. Reeser fell from the roof on April 16, 1901, and was instantly killed. Rev. Frederick C. Seitz, who delivered the address at the laying of the corner-stone of the chapel, was called to the pastorate and has since served the congregation, though he will leave October 1 to become pastor of St. John's Reformed Church at Allentown.
Since the organization of the first congregation, in 1775, there have been 11 pastors and 4 churches were erected.

What better recommendation can an article have than to say it always gives satisfaction.

FROM CASHTOWN.
Cashtown, Sept. 19. —H. L. Bream sold a lot of ground in Cashtown to Adam Deardorff. Mr. Deardorff intends to commence building on it this fall. It is the lot between Mr. Bream's store and the hotel.
Quite a lot of men have gone from this community to the states of New York and New Jersey to pack apples.
Wm. Freed, Sr., bought a tract of cleared land, containing 2 1/2 acres, below Hilltown, from D. Elmer Stover; conditions $230 cash.
Daniel McDannell had a light paralytic stroke a week or more ago, but is again in his milk wagon driving his team and is slowly improving.
The prospect for chestnuts is a poor one.
The apple crop is a reasonably fair one through here, but nothing compared to last fall.
Corn is ripening very slowly, but is a fairly good crop through here.

Household Hints
Teach the boys as well as the girls the proper way to put the bedclothes to air over two chairs in the morning, and also occasionally give the boys a lesson in simple cooking by having them help prepare breakfast. The lad who can make a good cup of coffee, broil a steak and serve them will lose nothing of manliness, but may find the knowledge useful in afterlife.
The greatest convenience in our sewing-room is a good-sized bag for each member of the family, plainly marked. Into this are put all the left-over pieces of all the new garments, and when mending day comes no precious time is lost in searching among the accumulations of the whole family to find a piece to match Jennie's apron or Johnny's blouse.
Buy a strip of asbestos cloth at the hardware store and use small squares to interline your iron-boards. Keep a good-sized piece fastened to your ironing-board to save the sheet, and lay a square under the table pad where the meat platter rests.
Do not try to sweep an invalid's room, but wring a clean cloth out of cold water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added, and carefully wipe the carpet, matting or floor, turning and rinsing the cloth and changing the water as it gets dirty.
Cheesecloth or silkoline makes good dusts, and window or box gratings that are no longer fresh and attractive should be cut into squares and neatly hemmed for the purpose. There should be a sufficient number on hand that they may be washed as regularly as the face towels, as they last longer and give more satisfactory service with frequent washings.

Good Spirits.—Good spirits don't all come from Kentucky. Their main source is the liver—and all the fine spirits ever made in the Blue Grass State could not remedy a bad liver or the hundred-and-one ill effects it produces. You can't have good spirits and a bad liver at the same time. Your liver must be in fine condition if you would feel buoyant, happy and hopeful, bright of eye, light of step, vigorous and successful in your pursuits. You can put your liver in fine condition by using Green's August Flower—the greatest of all medicines for the liver and stomach and a certain cure for dyspepsia or indigestion. It has been a favorite household remedy for over thirty-five years. August Flower will make your liver healthy and active and thus insure you a liberal supply of "good spirits." TACKLED A MULE.
Great American Kicker Victorious
Over Puffing Terror.
A badly battered automobile wobbled through Allentown one day last week carrying four automobilists, who said they had come from Balliettsville, but who refused to give their names because they didn't want their friends to know that their "red devil" had come off second best in a battle with a Kentucky mule.
The automobilists admitted that several miles out of town their searchlight discovered a big mule grazing by the roadside. The French tooter whooped a warning and the chauffeur decided he'd see how close he could steer to that mule without hitting him. The animal paid absolutely no attention to the machine until it was within three feet of him, and then he let go his hind legs. One tire and the engine hood were kicked clear off the machine and the steering gear was put out of commission. The mule kept on grazing, while the autoists spent several hours putting on a new tire and making other repairs.
